

Dr. Allan Saxe is an American political scientist, author, lecturer, radio commentator, philanthropist, and university professor. He is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Texas at Arlington, where he has been a faculty member since 1965. He received his PhD, Master's degree and Bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Oklahoma. He instructs in state and local politics and civil liberties at UTA. He has numerous publications and presentations to his credit as well as being widely interviewed by the news media on current political events.